Ans 7. (Views on Child Labour in Domestic Work)

Say No to Child Labour in Domestic Work

Children are the future of any nation, and their primary right is to receive a proper education, play, and grow in a healthy environment. Unfortunately, using children for domestic work strips them of their childhood and fundamental rights. When forced into domestic labor, children are often subjected to long, exhausting working hours, physical abuse, and mental trauma. This severe exploitation prevents them from attending school, destroying their potential to build a bright and independent future.

As a responsible citizen of Nepal, it is our moral and legal duty to raise our voices against this grave injustice. The government has already formulated strict laws against child labor, but real change requires social awareness. We must stop employing children in our own homes and report such activities if we witness them in our neighborhoods. Let us collectively ensure that every child holds a pen and a book, not a broom and a mop.

Ans 8. (Letter to the Editor)

To,
The Editor,
The Rising Nepal,
Kathmandu.

Subject: Growing environmental pollution and measures to control it.

Dear Sir/Madam,

Through the columns of your esteemed newspaper, I would like to draw the attention of the concerned authorities and the general public towards the alarming rise in environmental pollution.

Environmental pollution has become one of the most critical challenges of our time. The rapid increase in industrialization, unplanned urbanization, and deforestation has severely degraded air, water, and soil quality. The excessive use of plastic, improper disposal of toxic industrial waste into rivers, and the emission of harmful gases from vehicles and factories have severely affected human health. People, especially children and the elderly, are increasingly suffering from respiratory diseases, skin allergies, and waterborne illnesses.

To mitigate this crisis, immediate and effective measures must be taken. The government should enforce strict environmental laws against industries polluting water bodies and the air. We must rapidly shift towards renewable energy sources and promote electric vehicles. At an individual level, we should adopt the principles of 'Reduce, Reuse, and Recycle,' minimize plastic consumption, and actively participate in massive afforestation campaigns.

Protecting the environment is a shared responsibility, and I hope this letter serves as a wake-up call for everyone.

*Yours sincerely,
Sangam Gautam
Bhaktapur, Nepal*
